I am writing to apply for the Creative Copywriter position at Deadpan. The focus on comedy advertising and creative copy is a refreshing direction, and I appreciate the straightforward, contract-based approach to the role.

My professional background is in software engineering, where I have spent years writing clear, user-facing content for web applications and platforms. In my work, I have learned that good copy is not just about words, it is about understanding the audience, structuring information clearly, and communicating with purpose. Whether it is crafting onboarding flows, writing product descriptions, or designing error messages that do not frustrate users, I have developed a strong sense of how language shapes user experience.

One area that particularly interests me is the challenge of writing for comedy and advertising. Humor requires precision, timing, and a deep understanding of tone. These are skills I have honed through years of technical writing where every word must earn its place. I am comfortable iterating on drafts, testing different angles, and finding the right voice for a brand or campaign.

In addition to my technical experience, I work effectively across multidisciplinary teams and communicate clearly with both technical and non-technical stakeholders. I am fluent in Bengali and English, have working knowledge of Russian and Hindi, and enjoy collaborating in international and cross-cultural environments.

I have attached my CV for your review. Thank you for considering my application.

Best regards, Md Shahanur Islam Shagor
