I am writing to apply for the Social Media Manager role at Strange Face. What you've described â a young agency that values story over noise, craft over volume â is exactly the kind of environment where I want to contribute.

You asked applicants to skip the generic cover letter and show the work. I respect that. So instead of listing qualifications, I'll share what I've built. I developed Free Games Hub, a full-stack platform built with Laravel and Tailwind CSS that combines user authentication, KYC verification, a points economy, casino integrations, lottery systems, referral tracking, deposit and withdrawal flows, VIP rewards, two-factor authentication, real-time notifications, and a full administrative backend. It's a system designed to keep people engaged, not just logged in.

I also built a multivendor e-commerce ecosystem connecting customers, sellers, delivery agents, and logistics teams through role-based Flutter applications and a Laravel backend. That project taught me how to shape user journeys across different touchpoints and ensure every interaction feels intentional.

In addition to my technical experience, I work effectively across multidisciplinary teams and communicate clearly with both technical and non-technical stakeholders. I am fluent in Bengali and English, have working knowledge of Russian and Hindi, and enjoy collaborating in international and cross-cultural environments.

I've attached my CV for your review. I'd welcome the chance to talk about how I can help Strange Face show up online in a way people actually remember.

Sincerely,
