I am writing to apply for the Senior Brand Manager position at Flix. Your work in making travel accessible and affordable through FlixTrain is something I find genuinely interesting, and I appreciate the focus on building a strong, recognizable brand in a competitive mobility market.

While my professional background is in software engineering and full-stack development, the core of my work has always been about translating strategy into tangible, user-facing products. I have spent years managing complex projects from initial concept through to deployment, working closely with stakeholders, designers, and external partners to ensure consistent delivery across multiple channels. This end-to-end ownership and cross-functional collaboration align well with the generalist nature of this role.

In my previous work as a Web Developer, I was responsible for planning and executing features that directly impacted user experience and brand perception. I regularly coordinated with internal teams and external agencies to brief requirements, manage timelines, and maintain quality standards across all touchpoints. Whether it was optimizing a checkout flow or ensuring visual consistency across a multi-platform application, I learned to balance strategic thinking with hands-on execution.

One area that particularly interests me is the use of data to guide decisions. In my projects, I have relied on clear metrics and performance analysis to refine features and improve outcomes. I am comfortable working with KPIs, tracking results, and translating insights into actionable improvements. I also bring strong organizational skills and the ability to manage multiple parallel initiatives without losing focus on quality or deadlines.

In addition to my technical experience, I work effectively across multidisciplinary teams and communicate clearly with both technical and non-technical stakeholders. I am fluent in Bengali and English, have working knowledge of Russian and Hindi, and enjoy collaborating in international and cross-cultural environments.

I have attached my CV for your review. Thank you for considering my application.

Sincerely,

Md Shahanur Islam Shagor
