I am writing to apply for the Werkstudent Business Development position at Nomios. Your mission to build a secure and connected future through cybersecurity services is something I find genuinely compelling, and I want to contribute to your growth during this important phase.

While my technical background is in software engineering, I have always enjoyed the communication and outreach side of projects. In my previous work, I regularly interacted with clients, identified key stakeholders, and managed follow-ups to move projects forward. I am comfortable with cold outreach, whether through calls, emails, or LinkedIn, and I understand the importance of persistence and clear messaging.

What draws me to this role is the hands-on nature of the work. I am not looking for a position where I just observe. I want to be directly involved in identifying target companies, reaching out to decision-makers, and scheduling meetings for the sales team. I am eager to test different outreach approaches, refine messaging, and track results in a CRM system.

In addition to my communication skills, I work effectively across multidisciplinary teams and communicate clearly with both technical and non-technical stakeholders. I am fluent in Bengali and English, have working knowledge of Russian and Hindi, and enjoy collaborating in international and cross-cultural environments.

I am ready to learn, take ownership, and contribute to Nomios' growth from day one. I have attached my CV for your review and look forward to the possibility of discussing how I can support your team.

Best regards, Md Shahanur Islam Shagor

Sincerely,
