I am writing to apply for the Freelance Social Media Strategist position at Digital. While my professional background is primarily in software engineering and AI systems, I have consistently worked on projects that required strategic audience development, content planning, and community building through digital platforms.

Through my work building full-stack web applications, I have developed a strong understanding of how to create engaging user experiences and drive growth through digital channels. For example, I built a travel agency platform that required multi-language and multi-currency support, which taught me how to tailor content and positioning for diverse audiences. I also developed a gaming platform with user authentication, referral tracking, and a points economy, which involved community engagement mechanics and retention strategies.

One area that particularly interests me is the intersection of technology and brand growth. I have experience deploying applications on AWS, managing server infrastructure, and using analytics tools to monitor performance. These technical skills allow me to approach social media strategy with a data-driven mindset, understanding how to measure what works and iterate quickly.

In addition to my technical experience, I work effectively across multidisciplinary teams and communicate clearly with both technical and non-technical stakeholders. I am fluent in Bengali and English, have working knowledge of Russian and Hindi, and enjoy collaborating in international and cross-cultural environments.

I have attached my CV for your review and would welcome the opportunity to discuss how my background in building and scaling digital platforms can contribute to your social growth strategy.
